FIRST BIG GUN OF CAMPAIGN FIRED

W. W. B. McInnes, the Liberal candidate, made his bow to the electors of Red Deer on Saturday afternoon in the Rex Theatre. Arriving from his home in Vancouver, British Columbia, on Friday, he had his introduction to our exhilarating Alberta atmosphere by driving out to Ardley for a meeting Friday night with the mercury hovering far from tropical figures.

Slightly over one hundred persons assembled for the Saturday meeting, including a fair representation of the supporters of the various candidates in this election. The speaker was given a very peaceful hearing with very little interruption by applause and no heckling.

Mr. McInnes is not large in stature, but has a big voice and good delivery. He gives the impression that he means what he says, specializing in criticism without attempting to give many constructive reasons why the Liberal party should be returned to power. He was not as consistent in his argument as might be expected from one of his reputed political experience.

J. J. Gaetz, President of the Liberal Association, occupied the chair and introduced the candidate in a few words.

Mr McInnes referred to the fact that Dr. Clark has gone to contest a seat in Saskatchewan while the speaker had come here from British Columbia. He felt certain that both of them would go farther east after the election.

He paid a glowing tribute to the memory of the late chief, Sir Wilfrid Laurier, who had been honored by all parties after his death, despite the fact that he had been called a traitor by some in the heat of the 1917 election.

He declared that Canadian public life is cursed too much by bitterness. As far as he is concerned, there would be no mud-slinging or personalities in his campaign. He would accept the other candidates as honorable opponents so that they could be friends when the campaign is over.

All elections are important, but this one is more so than most others. He claimed that the people were dissatisfied with the "wretched" administration of the last four years. Only on election day can the electors be referred to as "the sovereign people," so this is their time to act; if they are not satisfied in later years it will be their own fault.

There are only two classes of political thought—those who are fighting for privileges they don't now enjoy. In other words the oppressed and the oppressor. Human nature is always there to be the last of power and domination and that war will always go on. He regarded the Liberal party as the one that has stood up for the masses.

He was proud to be a Liberal because Liberals had been known by that name since the reign of King McKenzie and the beginning of responsible government in Canada, despite the fact that the party had been subject to human frailties at times.

The opponents had changed their name on occasions, and had carried on a "campaign of trickery and deception" in 1917, thereby deceiving a number of good people. They had exploited the electors for the benefit of the profiteers whom they protected. This "polyglot party" was now backed by the big interests, he claimed, and had bought up and prostituted every press that was purchasable. He claimed that the big billboard campaign was costing a lot of money.

He had given Hon. R. B. Bennett credit for his stand on the proposed loan to McKenzie and Mann in 1914, but could not justify his entry into the Meighen government. Referring to one candidate in this riding as an "Independent National Liberal Conservative," he declared that the people were tired of that kind of camouflage.

He attacked the government for not giving redistribution before the election was called. He declared that "it would not be difficult for any expert government, with the aid of a modern machine, to total up the population within a week after the census was taken. "The census takers had asked too many important questions."

He would have had a straight census on population alone, then immediate redistribution and election following. No part of Canada would get its rights by lying down, and the west must look after itself, whether they like it in the east or whether they don't.

He is opposed to a protective tariff, as being bad, immoral, and unscientific—the freer the better is his ideal. The protective tariff had been introduced by Sir John Macdonald in 1878 to develop infant industries, and if they are not able to stand alone now it would be better to let the people employed in them do something rather than have all the people pay tribute to keep them going. Agriculture, the greatest industry, has to compete in the markets of the world, and some of our industries are doing so successfully.

He declared for free agricultural implements and believed in reciprocity with the United States, which has free trade within its extended borders though maintaining a tariff wall on the outside. He wished, that the Liberals had forced the reciprocity pact through in 1911 instead of going to the country on it. He believed that the U.S. would even yet be willing to negotiate such a pact, because it would be an "advantageous thing for them." But, in any case, he thought the United States would be willing to do all they could to bring the nations together.

He considered the railway question greater than the tariff, especially on the prairies. The transportation charges are too high, and he claimed that every dollar saved on freight would go into the pockets of the farmers and producers.

He characterized public ownership as a "popular fad" that he had always held would not work out in practice. The government has not operated as efficiently or as cheaply as the private owners. The private road always pays, whereas the others lose enor-

C.N.R. EMPLOYEES WOULD MAKE A GREAT CITY

If the 55,000 employees of the C.N.R. were domiciled in one spot, instead of being spread from one end of the country to the other, they would constitute a city larger than Hamilton, Calgary or Halifax. For it must be remembered that it is not only the people who actually work for the C.N.R. that are sustained by it, but their wives and families. This tremendous body of workers are actuated but by one motive, to make the C.N.R. the most successful publicly owned enterprise in the world, to run it as purely a business enterprise, divorced entirely from politics.

PENHOLD NOTES

Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. P. F. Parsons on the birth of a daughter on Monday, November 21st.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Domoney left for Victoria on Thursday to be away all winter. Mr. and Mrs. J. Greening left on Friday for the same destination.

Mrs. J. F. Speakman returned on Friday from a visit to her husband in Edmonton.

Mr. J. R. W. Teasdale and Penhold local talent are putting on "Uncles and Aunts" in Red Deer on Friday, November 25. This is a good chance for those who were disappointed at not seeing it in the spring to satisfy their longing for a good local play.

Considering the extreme cold, and the short notice given, the political meeting held on Saturday evening, on behalf of W. W. McInnes, Liberal candidate for this riding, was a great success. Mr. McInnes is a good speaker and was given the undivided attention of the people. He was supported by Lawyer Russell, and Tom Cuddy, in the chair.

The Women's Institute meeting, which was to be held at the home of Mrs. Quantz, has been postponed, owing to the weather, until Wednesday, November 30th.

Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Murcell spent a few days in Innisfail this week.

Mr. Ray. Brooker is visiting Wm. Ross for a few days.

We are sorry to hear that the Oddfellows went behind in their dance last Friday. Little & Bailey's orchestra, of Calgary, supplied the music, and it was very much enjoyed. The extreme cold kept many away who would otherwise have come.

ANNUAL MEETING OF FIRE BRIGADE

The annual business meeting and election of officers of the Fire Brigade was held Tuesday evening, November 15th. The officers for ensuing year were elected as follows:

J. F. DAY'S SUPPORT AND POPULARITY GROWING DAILY

The Independent Candidate is Proving That Experience and Knowledge of Conditions are What the Electors Want.

With the election campaign in the final stages, now that Nomination Day is over, it becomes more and more evident that little remains except to figure up the majority.

J. F. Day is attracting a magnificent support throughout the riding. Reports from every side indicate that every day makes his election more secure. The trend of public opinion is such that the electors are led to analyze the reasons for Mr. Day's growing popularity. They seem to be:

Because he is an old timer in the west, and has implicit faith in the future of the west.

Because, in time of stress, experience counts. The problem of existence is essentially the same today as it has been in the past.

Because he has made a success of his farming operations, and the world admires a successful man.

Because the people know that J. F. Day is a man of his word and will do what he promises.

Because he does not obscure himself with a camouflage of paltry2bunk. He is himself.

Because he knows the needs of the farming community and the problems of the stock raiser.

Because he knows the Red Deer riding and can serve it better than any other candidate.

Because he has endorsed Hon. Arthur Meighen as the ablest of the national leaders in this campaign.

Because he is not tied to any group or party. He owes allegiance to Canada alone.

Because he has the distinctively Canadian viewpoint and will never sell or barter his birthright.

These, with many others, constitute the record of success of a candidate that Red Deer will delight to honor on December 6th.

THE LATE T. B. MILLAR

One of the men who has left his imprint for good on the life of the Red Deer district, has passed to the Great Beyond. Thomas Burgess Millar, of Sylvan Lake, died at the Memorial Hospital last Saturday morning.

Deceased was born at Burgoyne, Ont., 57 years ago, and came to Alberta some 17 years ago. At first he settled in the Jones Valley, near Lacombe, remaining there for a year or so, when he went into the cheese factory business, putting up buildings at Burnt Lake, Eckville, Pitcox and Kuusamo.

He has been a great factor in the assimilation of the foreign born who have made their homes in the country west of Red Deer. He was a devoted Presbyterian, always active in social and moral reform.

In later years, he has been an ardent supporter of the U.F.A. and has been a strong candidate for nomination both provincial and federal U.F.A. political conventions.

Deceased leaves a widow and two sons, Charles and James, aged 19 and 18 respectively.

The funeral was held from the Presbyterian church on Monday afternoon, and was largely attended, Rev. W. G. Brown officiating. The arrangements were in charge of the Jacques-Orme Funeral home. The pallbearers were his two brothers, Rev. D. D. Millar, Kildonan, Man., and Jack Millar, Bentley, and two brothers, Lorne Millar, Kildonan, and Jas. Millar, Bentley. The remains were laid to rest in the Red Deer Cemetery.

SPRINGVALE NOTES

Harry Wallace will be in Red Deer for the next two weeks, acting as agent for Mr. Speakman, the U.F.A. candidate for this district. The committee rooms will be in Bruce Cox's old store, Ross St.

Miss Edith Code, who has been attending Camrose Normal, returned home last week on account of illness.

There is a note of interest for the children this week. Miss Ross had word that Santa will visit the school Friday evening, December 23rd. Don't forget the date.

Owing to the sever cold last Friday evening, there was not a very large turnout at the U.F.A. meeting at the school. A motion was made and passed that each member of the U. F. A. will give one sack of wheat to be sent to the drought stricken area of the south. The members ask the co-operation of all other locals in the Red Deer district. If five hundred bags of wheat could be secured, that would mean one carload, and would be a great help to those in distress. This motion was suggested by Harry Wallace, and anyone wishing to help out can speak to him in the U.F.A. committee rooms, Red Deer.

There will be a dance in the Divide Hall, December 2nd. Watch for further announcement.

SMOKER TONIGHT

On account of the sweeping success of the J. F. Day smoker in the Alexandra Hall last Wednesday night, the committee has acceded to the popular demand and arranged another one for tonight. There is going to be a "big time in the old town tonight." Don't miss it, boys; bring your friends. You know the place, Alexandra Hall, at 8 o'clock.

WEDDING BELLS

CARSWELL—PYKE

A wedding of great interest and exceptional beauty was solemnized at St. Luke's Episcopal Church, Red Deer, on Saturday afternoon last, November 19th, at 1.30 o'clock, when the rector, Rev. Gerald McComas, M.A., united in matrimony Hilda Hepworth, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dugald Pyke, of Red Deer, to Charles Frederick Carswell, B.A., barrister, of Rimbey, Alberta, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Carswell, of Red Deer. The ceremony was witnessed by relatives and intimate friends, and the church was filled with friends and well wishers of the two old time families. The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, looked lovely in a wedding gown of crepe back satin, trimmed with radium lace, and veil of embroidered Brussels net and orange blossoms, and carrying a bouquet of roses and ferns.

The wedding procession walked up the aisle of the church, preceded by two sweet little flower girls, Miss Margaret Hepworth, of Red Deer, and Miss Anna Corley, of Calgary, in ruffled dresses of white organdy, and carrying baskets of roses and carnations, followed by the other members of the party, the bride coming last, leaning on the arm of her father, to the strains of Lohengrin's Wedding March played by the organist of the church, W. R. F. Patchett. Attending the bride were Miss Mildred Pyke and Miss Doris Pyke, sisters of the bride, and Miss Kate Carswell, all three being daintily gowned in taffeta dresses in pastel shades, with hats to match, and each carrying a bouquet of chrysanthemums and ferns. The groom was attended by his eldest brother, J. Arthur Carswell, B.Sc., and supported by H. C. Carswell and Sidney Jones, B.A.

At the conclusion of the impressive service, while the register was being signed, Miss Lewis, of Calgary, a friend of the bride, sang "Love's Coronation," which was beautifully rendered. Following the service, a wedding breakfast was held at the residence of the bride's parents, 4th Street North, to which all did ample justice.

The Rev. Gerald McComas proposed the toast to the bride and groom, which was ably responded to by the groom and the best man. The groom's gift to the bride was a diamond and platinum pendant, and suitable gifts were also made to the bridesmaids. A large number of beautiful presents were received, testifying to the esteem in which the bride and groom are held by a large circle of friends.

The four gentlemen of the party were all returned Veterans of the Great War; the groom and best man were members of the Princess Pats; the third a member of the 89th Batt., transferring to machine gun section of the 102nd Batt., and the fourth saw service with a Nova Scotia regiment.

The happy couple left on the 4.15 train for Calgary, where they will spend their honeymoon, after which they will make their home at Rimbey, Alberta.

Among those present from outside points were: Miss Anna Corley, Mrs. Blair, Miss Margaret Blair, Miss M. L. Reese, Miss A. Lewis, Calgary; Miss Hepworth, Derby Lake, Alta.; Miss Margaret Wilton, Nanaimo, B.C.; Mr. E. H. Jones, Lacombe; Mr. H. G. Scott, Mountain House; Mr. and Mrs. Wood and family, Penhold; Mr. R. B. Crummy, Carstairs; Mr. and Mrs. G. C. S. Crosby, Calgary; Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Eversole, Springvale.

N. RED DEER ELECTIONS

During the past year the Village of North Red Deer has been benefitted in numerous ways by the existence of the North Red Deer Community Club, which is composed of a majority of the resident electors of the village. Numerous social functions have been held in the school and the village office, and in addition, and least by no means in importance, we recall the splendid Christmas entertainment held last year and the Sports Day held in July.

Having met together in this way throughout the year, frequent opportunity has been had for discussing village affairs, with the result that a large majority of them are now quite interested, and at the Nomination meeting, to be held Monday evening, December 5th, it is expected that the village office will be crowded and there will be no lack of willing candidates for the three seats about the Council board.

Reeve Durand, who has given faithful service for a number of years as Councillor and Reeve, will be a candidate and will thoroughly enjoy a good fight. Other electors who are being mentioned include the names of Robert Martin, C. Donnelly, Walter Webb, Fred Mitchell, and (whisper) one of the ladies of the Village may decided to run for election.

We have not yet learned if the present Councillors, Mr. W. S. Metcalf and Mr. David Linn, will be candidates again or not. They have both been very faithful in their duties as Councillors and given good service.

Every elector of the Village should be present at the Nomination meeting to be held in the Village office, from 8 to 10 p.m., on Monday, December 5th.

CITIZENS' MEETING APPROVES CLOSING OF 3RD ST. NORTH

Considered Dangerous to Maintain Crossing There Across C.N.R. Tracks.

"That it this meeting of citizens request the City Council to approve the closing of 3rd St. North across the C. N.R. right-of-way, reserving the right to apply to the Railway Commission of Canada at any time for permission to build a subway at that point on the same terms as agreed upon for any other subway, the city to pay half the cost, and the Company half."

This represents the sense of a resolution which was the outcome of the citizens' meeting in the city hall on Monday evening. There was a very good attendance of citizens, some fifty or sixty being present. Mr. Broderick and Mr. McPherson were present representing the Canadian National Railways.

Mayor Collison, in the chair, outlined the situation which led to the calling of the meeting. There had been negotiations with the C. N. R. extending over several years. The steel was now laid into the city, but the line was not operating, and it was essential that action should be secured as soon as possible.

Mr. Broderick reported that the proposed agreement between the company and the city had been submitted to the officials of the company, but strong objection was taken by the operating department to the 3rd St. N. crossing. It would not be safe for children crossing to and fro at that point. One difficulty is that children will not wait for a standing train to move on, but will climb through between the cars, or, worse still, crawl through under. This is extremely dangerous when shunting is in progress. The company is ready to pay the balance due the city, some $1500, as soon as the agreement is authorized.

Commissioner Stephenson reviewed the agreements that had been proposed with the company from time to time, but none of these had been signed. As a matter of fact, neither 3rd St. N. or any other street between 6th St. N. and the Exhibition grounds had been registered as streets across what is now the C.N.R. right-of-way. We had fought to keep 3rd St. N. open so that the children could go to school that way. Now they proved closing it, as being too dangerous. It would only make a little difference for the children attending school, and no difference to the community at large, with the exception of the short cuts that are now possible across the open lands near the school, but which could not be regarded as permanent. It would be better to go a little further around than to run the risk of accident. An action for $5,000 or $10,000 damages against the C.N.R. would be poor compensation for the death of a child.

Mr. Stephenson contended that the citizens were overburdened with taxes. We must get more people in; to do that we must have the railway. They are getting no bonus, and are paying for the land they are using. Get the line operating, then we can appeal to wholesale houses and manufacturing firms to locate here.

R. G. Dawe contended for the building on a subway instead of closing the street. He figured that this could be done for $20,000. Mr. Broderick estimated that it would cost $50,000 or $60,000.

The Mayor thought that even $20,000 was "some money" to raise. From his conversation with the officials in Winnipeg, he thought there was a chance to get the line operating in Hepworth, Derby Lake, Alta.; Miss Margaret Wilton, Nanaimo, B.C.; Mr. E. H. Jones, Lacombe; Mr. H. G. Scott, Mountain House; Mr. and Mrs. Wood and family, Penhold; Mr. R. B. Crummy, Carstairs; Mr. and Mrs. G. C. S. Crosby, Calgary; Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Eversole, Springvale.

N. RED DEER ELECTIONS

During the past year the Village of North Red Deer has been benefitted in numerous ways by the existence of the North Red Deer Community Club, which is composed of a majority of the resident electors of the village. Numerous social functions have been held in the school and the village office, and in addition, and least by no means in importance, we recall the splendid Christmas entertainment held last year and the Sports Day held in July.

Having met together in this way throughout the year, frequent opportunity has been had for discussing village affairs, with the result that a large majority of them are now quite interested, and at the Nomination meeting, to be held Monday evening, December 5th, it is expected that the village office will be crowded and there will be no lack of willing candidates for the three seats about the Council board.

Reeve Durand, who has given faithful service for a number of years as Councillor and Reeve, will be a candidate and will thoroughly enjoy a good fight. Other electors who are being mentioned include the names of Robert Martin, C. Donnelly, Walter Webb, Fred Mitchell, and (whisper) one of the ladies of the Village may decided to run for election.

We have not yet learned if the present Councillors, Mr. W. S. Metcalf and Mr. David Linn, will be candidates again or not. They have both been very faithful in their duties as Councillors and given good service.

Every elector of the Village should be present at the Nomination meeting to be held in the Village office, from 8 to 10 p.m., on Monday, December 5th.

PROFESSOR AT MCGILL SHOT BY MONOMANIAC

Sir Andrew MacPhail Escaped With Wound—Assailant Killed Himself

Montreal, November 15.—Sir Andrew MacPhail, professor of medicine at McGill University, was shot through the right shoulder this afternoon, at his office by Louis Ogulnik, son of S. M. Ogulnik, a prominent tailor of this city, who immediately committed suicide. Sir Andrew was only slightly hurt. Ogulnik, who is 38 years of age, is said to have suffered from monomania in the form of violent hallucinations, and is described by his brother as having been queer some time. He was obsessed with the idea that some "terrible monster" was following him. Immediately after the shooting, Oguinik turned the weapon on himself, pulling the trigger twice. One bullet lodged in his chest, the other in his brain. Death was almost instantaneous. Four shots were fired altogether. Of these, the first went wide. Professor MacPhail had time to partly dodge the second as he rushed through a door and was closing it behind him the second shot rang out and struck him in the shoulder just above the arm pit. He was not seriously hurt being able to telephone for an ambulance himself. A few minutes later, he was on his way to the Royal Victoria hospital where the bullet was extracted.

The dead man had known Sir Andrew fairly well, but whether he has ever consulted him medically the family cannot say.

QUEBEC JUDGE SCORES LAWYER OVER DEFENSE

"Hit Below the Belt," Says Mr. Justice Monet, in Murder Case

Montreal, November 15.—That in his address to the jury he made no reference to pig's blood nor English blood, is the feature of a statement issued tonight by Alban Germain, K. C., counsel for the defence in the trial of Grace Moreno, sentenced today to life in connection with the death of James J. Rowe, ex-service man, stabbed to death by the woman in an altercation over a five dollar bill. The trial of the Moreno woman was quite overshadowed by the sweeping denunciation of her counsel uttered by Mr. Justice Monet today. His lordship declared that in the cross-examination of Dr. Derome, medical expert, on a statement that the blood found on the knife alleged to have been used by Grace Moreno, was human blood, Mr. Germain had not been afraid to say to the exclusively French-speaking jury that the blood was not human blood, but the blood of a pig, that of an Englishman. The judge condemned this statement as grossly incongruous and ignoble. He further stated that Mr. Germain had "struck the presiding judge of this court below the belt in challenging the right of the judge to give his opinion concerning the interpretation of the proof.

In the opinion of members of the Montreal bar present in the court of King's Bench, it is many years since one of their number has been subjected to such unqualified censure as was pronounced by Mr. Justice Monet.

FATAL DISEASE IS MYSTIFYING MEDICAL MEN IN ONTARIO

Milton, Ont., November 17.—As the result of a disease, the origin of which is baeling the doctors, two children belonging to James Black lock, Milton, have died in agony.

One doctor believes the sickness was caused by a fly carrying a contagious disease and depositing it on apples which were eaten by the children.

UNEMPLOYMENT IS AT PEAK IN MONTREAL

Montreal, November 17.—There is more unemployment in Montreal this year than there has been for many years past, and indications point to a very severe winter, declare many social workers. All charitable institutions are filled to capacity while the number of applications for work has never been equalled.

"THE FAVORITE"

For the stubborn coughs and colds that distress children at this time of the year mothers will find Peps a soothing, effective remedy.

As Peps tablets dissolve in the mouth, the healing vapour-like medicines are breathed through the throat and tender air-passages into the lungs. They give immediate relief.

Keep the youngsters healthy and strong-chested then! Give them Peps when they start out for school into the raw morning air, again, when they turn in for bed at night.

Pleasant to take Peps are ever the children's favorite, whilst they have won the confidence of mothers for their unfailing effectiveness, and freedom from harmful drugs.

EFFORTS OF GOV'T TO BRING PEACE GIVEN APPROVAL

Developments of Irish Negotiations Hang in Balance.

London, November 17.—Development of the Irish negotiations now seems to hang upon the decision of the Unionist conference at Liverpool and an indication of what this decision may be is seen in the meeting of Unionists of eleven divisions at Birmingham, which adopted a resolution of "hearty approval of the efforts of the government to bring peace with Ireland by a conference with the representatives of Northern and Southern Ireland.

Sir James Craig, the Ulster premier, has been in close touch with Andrew Bonar Law and other Unionist leaders in London, but the delivery of Ulster's reply to the government's proposals has been delayed until Thursday.

The vote of confidence accorded Sir James Craig at Belfast seems to authorize him to negotiate, as well as resist. The resignation of Attorney-General Brown also points to some new development. He would naturally resign if both Irish parliaments were functioning, but, although the Northern parliament will begin to function November 22, the Dublin parliament cannot function, and Southern Ireland is still virtually administered from London. According to Belfast reports, Mr. Brown's resignation was due to his disagreement with the government policy regarding Ulster.

ULSTER LOYALISTS PROTEST TREATMENT BRITISH CABINET

Repudiate Idea of Being Under Dominion of All-Ireland Parliament

Belfast, November 17.—Ten thousand Loyalists in three meetings last night emphatically protested against the British cabinet's treatment of Ulster. Great enthusiasm was displayed. The Lord Mayor of Belfast, presiding over the principal meeting in the assembly hall, declared that Ulster never would be the vassal of a Sinn Fein parliament. Resolutions to this effect were adopted unanimously. These included a resolution confidently replying on the Liverpool conference to repudiate the idea of placing Ulster under the dominion of an all Ireland parliament. The mention of Mr. Lloyd's George's name was greeted with groans.

Sir James Craig, the Ulster premier, wrote from London to the leaders of the Ulster mass meeting held here in protest against an all-Ireland parliament, asking a vote of confidence to continue the present negotiations in the following terms:

"May I ask a simple though momentous question? Will you support my colleagues and myself in every step we consider necessary to maintain our freedom from Sinn Fein domination, while still striving to attain an honorable peace? I shall be much strengthened in the stand I am taking as much in the interests of Great Britain as of Ulster by an expression of your confidence and support. It appears to me that the honor, prestige and, it may be, the whole future of our empire is at stake."

WILL HANG JANUARY 18

Hamilton, November 17.—Wilfrid Neharg, convicted of murder, was yesterday convicted to be hanged on January 18, and Clarence Spaulding and Edward Dickenson were sentenced to serve seven years' imprisonment in conviction for conspiracy to rob, in connection with the shooting of Dr. Witworth, veterinary surgeon, at Binbrook, some months ago. Two other men who were in the bandit's car on the night of the crime, were remanded for sentence.

GREY NUNS WILL REFRAIN FROM CASTING VOTES IN THE FEDERAL ELECTION

Montreal, November 15.—Among the women of Canada who will not exercise their right to vote are the 4,000 members of the various Roman Catholic sisterhoods scattered throughout the city. We are not acquainted with the ways of the world," said Mother McKenna, of the Grey Nuns, today. The same sentiment was expressed by the heads of various other orders. The majority of brothers will also refrain from taking an active part in the coming elections.

"We never vote," said one father, "we prefer to remain free from parties."

GRAIN TRADE OVERSHADOWS OTHER ISSUES

Farmers of Manitoba Towns May Take Interest in Pool.

Brandon, Nov. 18.—In Souris and Brandon constituencies, the chief strongholds of agrarian political strength, the prime minister addressed over 6,000 electors yesterday. There were four crowded meetings. He dipped down to Boissevain for the afternoon and came back to Brandon in the evening. In each the attendance was mostly rural, and some farmers drove fifty miles through a furious snowstorm. While the candidates of each constituency, who appeared on the platform with the premier were heckled good naturedly, Mr. Meighen was interrupted but twice, each time to answer a question.

The grain question is assuming overwhelming importance in this part of the west, and in the smaller towns of Manitoba, the audiences seem but slightly interested in other issues. They display the greatest alertness when the grain trade, the grain board and the investigation are discussed in their various angles.

BOTH ARE FARMERS

In the two constituencies canvassed yesterday, the government candidates are both pioneer farmers and pioneer members of the Grain Growers' Business and Political Association. R. G. Willis, in Souris, is the president of the provincial Liberal-Conservative Association, and the district president of the National Liberal and Conservative Association. He was defeated for the provincial house in Souris by sixty-six votes last year. For thirty years he has farmed in Souris county and is one of the largest farmers in Manitoba.

WEIR ON PLATFORM

In Brandon, Col. C. F. Ivans has farmed for forty years in the constituency. So anxious were the farmers to hear all phases of the grain trade discussed that James Weir, ex-Non-Partisan League M.L.A. of Alberta, and second vice-president of the U.F.A., who has broken with the Wood organization because of the provincial president's class government views, went on the platform at all the meetings, with the premier, to tell them from his intimate connection of fifteen years with the farmers' organization some inside facts. He and the two candidates supplemented the prime minister's efforts, all receiving very serious attention.

Mr. Meighen provoked considerable applause at Souris when he proclaimed that railway rates must come down, and that very soon. Willis, in denouncing group and class government, remarked that "we have a striking example of group government today in Manitoba, and we are not proud of it. If there is one in this audience that is proud of it, please stand up." No one stood up. "Well, do we want that sort of thing at Ottawa?" he asked.

QUESTION IS ASKED

When Mr. Meighen was telling the Souris meeting about the early stages of the wheat board, and Mr. Crerar's opposition to it, a farmer called out, "If it was such a good thing, why was it that many farmers living along the border, right in Souris, hauled their wheat over the line and sold it for $3.15." The prime minister replied, "Well, they certainly cannot haul their wheat over the border now, for the Fordney Tariff Tax Bill taxes our grain too high."

In discussing the careless charges of political foes and their efforts to cause political unrest, the speaker remarked: "Look at Russia; her condition is due to the people in a crisis listening to humbugs and hypocritical agitators. Had we not better keep a straight course, as our forefathers did, and follow a policy for the benefit of the country as a whole? Don't vote under the sway of prejudiced class interest; don't be led into fallacy and error. Times are not good in Canada, but they are better than anywhere else in the world.

POINTS TO RUSSIA

"They thought in Russia that times could not be worse a few years ago, and they heeded the agitators' advice to rise as a class and try production for use, instead of profit, and they got chaos and starvation, and nearer home, in North Dakota, they tried somewhat the same method, and now that great state is prostrated. Mr. King talks of our national debt. The federal cost of administration has increased but 21 per cent., and Ontario has gone under a Farmer government to 119 per cent. increase.

JAPAN THROWS WRENCH INTO CONFERENCE

Some of Her Reservations to Limitation Proposal Are Eyed Askance.

Washington, Nov. 18.—The United States led the way in putting "open diplomacy" into effect when Secretary Hughes sprung his "bombshell" speech at the opening of the limitation of armament conference. China followed yesterday with her ten proposals for the settlement of Far Eastern problems. Comes now Japan, not to be outdone, and issues through Baron Kato a categorial statement setting forth Japan's reservations anent Hughes' proposals. They were shown to one of the British delegation by a newspaper man last night and the delegate said that this was the first he had heard of them. They had not been mentioned in the naval committee of experts.

JAPAN'S ARGUMENTS

Japan argues that because of her geographical position she deems it only fair that the other interested countries should agree that she maintain a proportion of general tonnage greater than sixty per cent of Britain and America, and in types of vessels strictly for defensive purposes she considers herself entitled to an amount approximating that allotted the other five powers.

Everyone knew Japan had certain modifications to suggest. No one expected such a categorical statement nor that it would be given to the world in such a manner.

DAMPENS ENTHUSIASM

It has stirred up mud at the bottom of a stream which looked comparatively clear and has served to dampen enthusiasm of the optimists.

It would appear that the Japanese are balking at what is now known as the "five-five-three" standard, to some extent, at least, because of their desire not to be forced to scrap their latest capital ship, the Mutsu, and two others which are well on the way to completion.

Her arguments might be applied equally by Great Britain if she cared to use them, particularly with regard to Australia and New Zealand.

It becomes increasingly apparent that while originally Hughes' proposals sounded fascinatingly simple, the technical details constitute the major part of the problem.

ERRONEOUS IMPRESSION

Meanwhile the British delegation has been at some pains to remove the erroneous impression that they were officially in favor of allowing a ship-building programme of one capital ship each year during the naval holiday.

It was stated by a high authority today that this suggestion has not been officially considered by the British delegation, which is heartily in favor of the holiday, their only anxiety being with regard to the disposition of the useless shipyards and the highly trained personnel which they employ. Any suggestion that the naval committee was employing dilatory methods in its work was entirely without warrant, said this delegate.

ENTHUSIASM UNPRECEDENTED FOR THE PRINCE

Tour of Heir to British Throne Considered to Have Opened With Splendid Promise.

London, Nov. 18.—Reuter's correspondent with the Prince of Wales in a long detailed dispatch, describes the reception of the prince by the populace of Bombay when he landed, and during the procession through the city. The splendid military cortege at various points along the route touched the fringe of the native bazaar, where there was tumultuous enthusiasm, unprecedented in the history of Bombay.

The route of the procession was lined with British and Indian troops. A public holiday had been declared, and all the inhabitants closed their shops and flocked into the streets to greet the prince, whose manner and bearing made a great impression.

The correspondent adds that although the political atmosphere in Bombay is rather tense, the tour of the prince is considered to have opened with splendid promise.

A dispatch to the London Times from Calcutta dated Tuesday, says the extremists were taking advantage of the visit of the prince to gain further notoriety and that they might declare a general demonstration when the prince landed.

It added that the lower element inspired by unscrupulous agitators and professing adherence to Mahatma Grandhi and the Caliphate of workers, were likely to interfere with the plans of the better part of the populace by organized demonstrations of terrorism which were already rife in the Indian quarter.

LATEST NEWS

There is more unemployment in Montreal this year than there has been for many years past, and indications point to a severe winter.

Ald. W. B. Simpson, nominee of the Dominion Labor party as candidate for North Winnipeg constituency, has withdrawn from the contest.

Thirty men, many of whom are said to be notorious international criminals, were arrested on Thursday during an underworld raid in Montreal.

The 1921 census gives the province of Alberta a population of 681,995, as compared with 374,663 in 1911, an increase of 207,332, or 55.34 per cent.

Harry Brown, city clerk at Brandon, Man., for 15 years, dropped dead late Wednesday on his way home from the city hall.

The sum of $10,352,000 was handled in the pari-mutuels during the 119 days' racing in the province of Quebec, it has been announced.

Sir Lomer Gouin, who is a Liberal candidate in Montreal for the house of commons, has sent in his resignation as a member of the legislative council.

Eleven head of the finest show cattle in the province will leave Brandon for Chicago today, where they will be displayed at the International show as Manitoba's exhibit.

Coal is moving out of Lethbridge and the Crow's Nest Pass fields at the rate of 165 cars a day. The mines in these districts have been working full shifts since the first of October.

As the result of a disease, the origin of which is unknown, and is baffling medical men, two children belonging to James Blacklock, Milton, Ont., have died in great agony.

It is probable that the question of a reduction of freight rates on Canadian railways will shortly be taken under consideration by the Dominion board of railway commissioners.

There are 10,000 men out of work in Toronto at the present time, and this number is being augmented at the rate of about 100 a day, declares Capt. Neath, superintendent of the Toronto labor bureau.

Victor Lloyd Dimock, 16, had his head blown off by a gun in the hands of a companion while out rabbit shooting at Mount Uniacke, N.S., on Tuesday. A verdict of accidental death was returned at the inquest.

G. B. McNabb, of Fort William, one of the oldest engineers on the transcontinental railway, was instantly killed on Wednesday evening when the boiler of his engine blew up. An inquest has been ordered.

Frank Carter, Saskatoon, convicted of attempted murder in the court of king's bench at Saskatoon on Thursday was sentenced to imprisonment for life. As the judge passed sentence Carter looked up and said, "That doesn't faze me."

William, the young son of Mr. Frank Matheson, of Granum, was painfully burned several days ago when he collided with his mother, who was carrying a kettle of boiling water. He is recovering.

The executive of the Canadian Labor party announced at a meeting of St. John, N.B., that the farmers of Albert county had accepted the proposal of the Labor party to run a joint Labor-Farmer ticket as supporters of the Progressive party under Hon. T. A. Crerar.

The Bombay correspondent of the London Times, says the non-co-operationists had made the utmost efforts to render the boycott of the Prince of Wales' visit effective, but the only result was an overwhelming and tumultuous reception, passing all possible expectations.

Leave Your Widow An Income That Cannot Be Lost

LEAVE your insurance money in such a way that she will be protected against the schemes of the promoter of speculative enterprises or the kindly but unreliable financial advice of well-meaning relatives and friends!

Have it paid to her in the form of monthly cheques from the Mutual Life Assurance Company as long as she lives.

Then she will have a sure, safe, steady income that cannot be lost.

If she should die before she has received 240 monthly cheques the payments will continue to the estate until 240 monthly cheques have been paid.

If you desire you can have the Mutual Life Monthly Income Policy paid to you in monthly installments as long as you or your wife live after you have paid twenty annual premiums, 240 consecutive monthly payments being absolutely guaranteed to your estate.

There are other advantages of Mutual Monthly Income Policies, which are explained in a booklet entitled: "A Guaranteed Monthly Income." Write for it. Learn all about this modern and best form of life insurance protection for the home.

Remember, also, that the Mutual Life of Canada is the only Canadian Life insurance company that sells insurance on the Mutual profit-sharing plan. All profits to the policyholders. No stockholders to share in them.

WHY THE UNITED STATES RAISED ITS TARIFF

It is sometimes stated that, had Canada not rejected the Reciprocity Agreement proposed by the United States in 1911, the United States would not have passed the Fordney Tariff Bill last May, and would not now be preparing a new permanent tariff, which will be strongly protective.

The absurdity of this statement is apparent on a moment's reflection, because the United States, in passing the Fordney act, made a general increase of its protective tariff against all the countries of the world, and not particularly against Canada.

The United States is now framing a new tariff which has passed the House of Representatives, and is being considered by the Senate. This is a high protective measure and places high rate of duty on products from all countries entering the United States.

Obviously, the United States, in taking this action, is not inspired by revenge and is not trying to punish Canada for Canada's refusal to adopt Reciprocity in 1911. A great country does not determine its policies by such petty motives.

The United States has raised its tariff to protect the industries of that country. In doing so, the policy which has been in effect in the United States for 132 years is being maintained.

WE BUY, PER HEAD, 19 TIMES AS MUCH FROM THE U.S. AS THEY BUY FROM US.

Last year the United States bought from Canada goods worth 542 million dollars.

And Canada bought from the United States goods worth 856 million dollars.

The United States has about 108 million people.

Canada has about 9 million people.

Thus, last year, each inhabitant of the United States bought five dollars worth of Canadian products, while each Canadian bought ninety-five dollars worth of United States products.

This is the situation with a Canadian tariff. What would it be if that tariff is abolished or reduced?

The convention of municipalities which met in Calgary last week, passed a motion in favor of holding the municipal elections the last week in January, in place of December, when everybody is busy. The idea is a good one, and we hope to see it carried out.

We hope to see a campaign of "buy at home" enthusiastically carried out by the citizens of Red Deer and district this year. Last year eighteen thousand dollars worth of goods were brought into Red Deer from outside. Buy at home and help the merchants who are helping you.

By-elections will be held December 9 for the re-endorsations of the electors for the return of the cabinet ministers of the provincial government. It is not likely they will be opposed.

And in the midst of all this hubbub of elections, poor old Santa Claus seems to be lost sight of entirely. But we believe the dear old chap will "bob up serenely" as usual with good cheer about Christmas time.

"I do not know much about the tariff, but I do know this much: when we buy goods abroad, we get the goods and the foreigner gets the money; when we buy goods made at home, we get both the goods and the money."—Abraham Lincoln.

CANADIAN AUTHORS' WEEK

Canadian Authors Week, that is, a week during which, by lectures, by pictures, by newspaper and magazine articles, and by various other means, Canadian books by Canadian authors shall be brought before the public of Canada as never before, is the week of November 19th to 26th.

It is not so well known as it should be that there is in Canada a considerable body of native literature worthy of a place among the best in other countries. To make the people of Canada acquainted with this literature is one of the objects of Canadian Authors Week.

In the past, and even today, men and women who have wished to follow literature as a profession have had to leave Canada and go, some to England, many more to the United States, in order to find a market for their books. By doing so, they have, in large measure, ceased to be Canadian; their books are written for an English or an American constituency and reflect the English or American character and ideal. What is needed in Canada today is a literature which will reflect the Canadian character and ideal. Nothing else will so effectively lay hold of the minds and the imaginations of our young people, especially those of the new-Canadians among us; nothing else will so effectively lead to national unity.

The promoters of Canadian week hope to—encourage the young people who are just beginning to write to build upon the excellent foundations already laid and to make use of the wealth of raw material that lies ready to their hand in their own country; they hope to awaken in the people as a whole a new appreciation of and loyalty to our own literature in Canada.

During the week, November 19th to 26th, the Department of Extension of the University is planning to exhibit at the University a number of books by Canadian authors. These will include a practically complete set of Hallburton's works, 'Emily Montague,' the first Canadian novel, by Mrs. Brooks, and several works in English and French of both literary and historical interest.

BAND ANNUAL MEETING

Elect Mr. J. E. Welton as Bandmaster —Change Name of Organization Back to Red Deer Citizens' Band.

On Wednesday evening, November 16, the Band held their annual meeting in the City Hall, with President Haste in the chair, and prepared for another season's work. After the annual reports of the officers, matters pertaining to the welfare of the Band were discussed. The roll showed that Mr. H. Langley held the best record for attendance, missing one meeting out of the 45 held; President Haste came next with 43, and Vice-President McDowell third with 42. These members may well be proud of their attendance records.

The election of officers was then held with the following result:—

Hon. President—His Worship Mayor Collison.
Hon. Vice-Presidents—C. C. Gamble, Chief Anderson, E. H. Brewerton.
President—E. Haste
Vice-President—T. R. McDowell
Bandmaster—J. E. Welton
Secy.-Treas.—Geo. M. England
Property Committee—The President and H. Langley.
Librarian—Lee Searancke

The Executive Committee was reduced to three members, as it had been found during the past year that a large Executive Committee were hard to get together at times when needed. The Executive Committee for this year comprise the President, Bandmaster and Secretary-Treasurer.

It is hoped that the Honorary Officers of the Band this year will interest themselves in the organization to a certain extent, and the Band boys would appreciate their presence at any meeting of the band, and are prepared to accept and consider any suggestions which they might be inclined to offer.

After considerable thought and discussion, the name of the band was changed back to its old one, and will therefore be known in the future as "The Red Deer Citizens' Band."

The meeting adjourned to meet for band practice at the call of the Executive Committee.

FIRST BIG GUN OF CAMPAIGN FIRED

mously. He did not make any effort to explain how Canada came to be saddled with the third Transcontinental road, but claimed that the rates are kept high in an effort to make the government roads pay operating charges. He would let the government roads go into private ownership; he didn't care to whom or how, and was not concerned with the Shaughnessy plan. Nor did he seem to care how the national obligations on account of the roads were to be paid. He would then have a "properly constituted railway board" to exercise rigid control of rates.

Mr. McInnes was particularly severe on the Canadian banking system as made up of "chartered banks that exercise absolute domination and are responsible to no one." A man can't get accommodation when he wants it, when the stress is on. He did not blame the local managers who were "only graduated bank clerks"; the trouble was with the directors around the mahogany tables in the east. The west is held up for weeks in the fall for want of money, he claimed, while it was poured into New York on short loans.

He would have a National Bank, where any man of character and assets could get accommodation whenever he needed it.

He characterized exchange as graft, determined only by the banks which are responsible to no one. He claimed that when the Canadian dollar was only worth 90 cents in the United States, the banks got the other 10 cents, and when the pound sterling was a dollar under par, the banks got the dollar. His National Bank would be able to smooth out the wrinkles in international exchange.

As an instance of the "scandalous waste of public money," the annual expenditure now is 560 million dollars, whereas it was only 40 millions some 15 years ago. It was time to call a halt on unnecessary expenses; there were too many cabinet ministers. He took exception to the building of two dry docks at the coast when one was enough, and accused the government of playing politics in the matter. Taxation must be reduced by reducing expenditures.

He could see no difficulty in handling the natural resources over to the province. The citizens of the country should then have equal opportunities to enjoy them. He would not tolerate the speculator, but would have the natural wealth go to those who would use and develop them. The Liberals would hand them over if they are elected because the big Liberal convention in Ottawa had said so.

The returned soldier cannot be adequately repaid, and the limit should be only the financial capacity of Canada, he declared. He had seen returned men in Canada without means and without a bed. There are 15,000 people out of work there, being kept by charity. A hungry man becomes bitter, and then he gets dangerous, so something must be done; he must be put to work. Mr. McInnes would employ every man developing the national resources.

He claimed the cost of living was too high. The authorities had allowed it to go up and stay up, and had not hammered it down. He claimed the Board of Commerce had not been allowed to function, and legitimate competition had been interfered with.

Mr. McInnes claimed that the ladies always supported him, and he would have their rights further protected by legislation. It was not fair that a man should be able to get a divorce easier than a woman could.

He had no quarrel with the Progressives, who have many principles identical with his own; there are only fancied differences. The Liberals have always played fair with the farmers, who never had a grievance against the Liberal governmeit. The patrons of industry were active in the election of 1896 and elected quite a group, but these men found their haven in the Liberal party when that government went into power.

Now the Farmers had been driven to organize again, despairing of receiving their rights from the present government. But if the Liberal Government is elected this time, the Farmers will again find that they get all they want from that source, and will merge with the Liberals again as they did on the former occasion.

He did not believe in class government. The great parliament of Canada should be representative of every class and should legislate for all. A member's worth does not depend on his occupation, but on his real genuine political convictions, his ability to present those views in the House of Commons, and his honesty of character.

"Turn these rascals out," was the basis of his appeal to the electors to oust the present government and elect the Liberals to ensure prosperity for Canada.

MEETING OF GOLDEN WEST M. D.

The eighth regular meeting of the Council of M.D. Golden West was held at the Municipal District office at Sylvan Lake on November 5, with Reeve Rogers in the chair, and all the Councillors present.

A letter was read from Mr. B. Kirkpatrick regarding the arrears of taxes on west half of section 7-37-2, W. 5th.

The Council decided not to send any delegates to the convention of Municipal Districts, to be held at Edmonton in December.

The Red Deer Memorial Hospital advised that the following were admitted to the Hospital at patients:—Mrs. A. J. Good, J. H. Fitch, Vernal Brooks. The Hospital also sent a bill for $1,417.35 due the Hospital for various patients whom the Hospital said were residents of M.D. 371. It was decided to give full consideration to the bill at a later meeting.

An account was received from the Attorney-General's Department re treatment for Batterson for $171. The account was referred to the solicitors.

The Council decided to pay $250 towards sending Andrew Lax back to Sweden, and to apply to the Swedish Consul for a refund. The Reeve and Councillor Smith will look after the matter.

A number of bills were presented, found correct and ordered paid.

The tax sale was held on November 5 and resulted in a large sum of money being realized. A Calgary man bought a number of quarters. The lands were sold for the amount of arrears and costs against them.

EXAMINER'S REVIEW OF PROVINCIAL MARKETS

Cattle—

Beef stronger—Calgary had a light run of cattle during the early part of week, but towards the end there was quite a bunch in. The tone is stronger than last week; choice steers, $4 to $4.25; good, $3.50 to $3.85; medium, $2.75 to $3.40; common down to $1.50. Choice cows slightly higher at $2.75 to $3.25; good, $2.25 to $2.75; medium, $1.75 to $2.25; common and canners down to $1. Choice heifers in demand, with tops $3 to $3.50; good, $2.50 to $2.75. Best bulls, $1.75 to $2; common down to $1. Calves fairly steady, but slightly lower at $3 to $3.50; common, $2.50 to $3. Stockers and Feeders—Choice steers stronger at $3 to $3.75; stocker steers, $2.50 to $3.25. Heifers steady at $2.50 to $3.35; cows from $3 down to $1.

Beef Strong—Edmonton yards had good buyers for many outlets, and prices are stronger, with top steers $4 to $4.50, the latter being exporters; good butchers, $3.50 to $4; medium, $2.75 to $3.25; common, $1.50 to $2. Choice cows, $3 to $3.25; good, $2.50 to $3; medium, $2 to $2.50; common, $1.50 to $2; canners down to four bits. Bulls slightly advanced to $2 to $2.50 for tops and down to 50c on canners. Calves also higher, with tops $3.50 to $4; good, $2.50 to $3. Feeders and stockers—Market active, but buyers insist on good breedy stock; choice feeders, $2.75 to $3.50; stocker steers, $2 to $3; stocker heifers, $2 to $2.50; stocker cows, $1.50 to $2.

Hogs—

Calgary market receipts light, with a few sales early in the week at $8.75 to $8.90. Thursday's arrivals at $8.75; today's price $8.75.

Hogs—Edmonton prices have been working down, and week-end sales were at $8.25.

Sheep—

Some choice lambs made $6.75, but most of the sales $5 to $6.50; wethers, $4.50 to $4.75; ewes, $2.50 to $4.25.

Sheep—Edmonton market firm, and lambs up to $7, but they have to be very good to get that; ewes, $3.25 to $4.25.

Grain—

Irregular—Prices during the week have been swinging fairly wide, but on declines there is a firmness which is taken by many to indicate that prices for a time are not going back to previous low levels. At present it is a hard market to follow. Crop news from Argentine and Australia will be governing factors in the market.

Produce—

Butterfat—Prices advanced 3c, and stations now pay 34c, 31c and 28c on special, first and second grades; creameries, 38c, 35c and 32c. Creamery butter in cartons advanced to 44c and 39c on first and second grades. Not much export surplus, but quoted on basis of 36c. Dairy butter, if best table quality, next week worth 27c to 31c; off grades much improved. Poultry shows no change in prices, with fowl, 9c to 12c; chickens, 12c to 13c; ducks, 14c to 15c; geese, 15c to 14c; turkeys, 20c to 23c; market prospects uncertain. Eggs which will grade as specials worth $15, but ordinary receipts on basis of $12 to $13.

Produce—

Butterfat—Edmonton district creameries have advanced prices on direct shipments 3c; making creamery prices 37c, 34c and 31c on specials, first and second grades, with the station prices 33c, 30c, and 27c; receipts light. Creamery butter—Price advanced 3c on cartons; shipping is nil; as not enough fresh butter being made to meet local demand. Eggs—Receipts of fresh eggs very light, and prices advanced to $12; eggs being imported from eastern provinces and States. Poultry—Better conditions have improved trade, and springs are quoted 12c; hens, 12c; turkeys, 18c; ducks and geese, 13c; retail trade still slow.

Hay—

Steady—Changed weather conditions may improve market, but no developments yet; upland at country points, $12 to $14; timothy, $17 to $18, as prices paid farmers at shipping points.

Hides—

Brighter—Western dealers are now getting offers on old stocks which they can dispose of at a loss, and some inclined to do so.

Furs—

Higher—Better tone to market; beaver, $7 to $20; coyote, $1 to $8; lynx, $7.50 to $35; dark marten, $20 to $35; mink, $2.50 to $9, are some of the advances.

WANT TOWN ELECTIONS TO BE HELD IN JANUARY

A proposal that municipal elections in towns be not held until the last Monday in January, was carried by the convention of municipalities at Calgary last week.

At present the elections are held in December and some delegates declared that the elections came on in a busy season of the year, and very little interest was taken in them.

The resolution asks the government to amend the towns act to have elections on the last Monday in January, with nomination day a week before, and that the first council meeting be held the first Monday in February.

PRESENTED WITH AN ADDRESS

Mrs. Dell, on her removal from Rocky Mountain House, was affectionately remembered by her fellow-workers with the following address:—

Rocky Mountain House,
November 8th, 1921

To Mrs. E. T. Dell
Dear Mrs. Dell:—

We, the members of the Ladies' Aid of the Presbyterian Church of Rocky Mountain House, of which you have always been an active and interested member, desire to express our keen regret that you are leaving our town. On leaving us we wish you to know that your sterling character and splendid qualifications, coupled with your willingness to assume responsibility, have rendered you a most valued member of our organization.

The energetic and loyal manner in which you gave your services to the social and beneficial interests of the town has won for you a warm place in the hearts of the people of Rocky Mountain House.

Although we do not attempt to reward you for your services, we ask you to accept this purse from the Ladies Aid, as a slight token of our esteem for you and of our keen appreciation of your friendship and work. Rest assured that we shall gratefully remember your association with us, and we wish you the very best of success in whatever you may do or wherever you may be.

GARDNER UNDER SENTENCE FOR FIFTY YEARS

Phoenix, Ariz., November 17.—Roy Gardner, convicted mail robber, who was captured here Tuesday night, was removed from the county jail by federal officers last night. Where he was to be taken and the reason for his removal was kept secret.

Gardner is accused of criminally assaulting Maria Munoz, a girl under 16 years of age, on October 21. She had identified Gardner as her assailant.

"Fair enough" was Gardner's comment when the state warrant was read to him. Later, however, Gardner denied tht he actually assaulted the girl.

Gardner will be prosecuted on a federal charge of attempted mail robbery here.

The government wishes to "play square" with Herman Inderlied, of Phoenix, the mail clerk who captured Gardner, according to an announcement by District Attorney Flynn.

The post department can pay the reward of $5,000 only for the "arrest and conviction" of a mail robber. If Gardner should be sent to Leavenworth without being tried for the attempted robbery as was originally ordered, it would be impossible for the government to pay the reward to Inderlied.

Sentences totalling 50 years were hanging over Gardner when he escaped from the federal prison at McNeil Island, Washington, September 5. The Arizona state charge of criminal assault cannot be proceeded with until the federal courts have disposed of their case.

Dr. Grenfell, head of the Labrador mission, has written to Sir Richard Squires, premier of Newfoundland, stating that he understood an interview purporting to have been given by him in connection with famine in Newfoundland, was being printed in United States papers. He claims that the interview is false, and was never given by him.

PIANO RECITAL—PRESENTATION OF PRIZES

A very fine recital was given on Wednesday evening in the School Assembly Hall by pupils of Madame Le-Saunier. The programme was unusual in being purely classical; and though the severity of the style of the composition gave little opportunity to hide defects in playing, the young performers, some of them of very tender age, acquitted themselves in a highly creditable manner.

It is delightful to see the young people thus early becoming acquainted with the works of great masters and learning to interpret them fittingly.

At the close of the programme the diplomas were presented to the candidates who had passed the summer examinations. The number of First-Class Honors was very gratifying to teacher and pupils.

Of special interest were the Academy prizes won by Misses Dora Soderman and Nona Quigg who were equal in the highest standing in the Dominion in Intermediate Piano. It was regretted that Miss Quigg was unable to be present.

Following is the programme:—

Sonatina in G Beethoven
Josephine Newsome
(a) Minuet in Rondo Form Rameau
(b) Schottische Beethoven
Dorothy Goodacre
Minuet in F (Composed when six years old) Mozart
Dorothy Welton
Allegro (Composed when six years old) Mozart
Mary Smith
Minuet in E Haydn
Jack Stewart (Penhold)
Prelude in C Minor Bach
Jean Simpson (Penhold)
Bagatelle Op. 119 No. 1 Beethoven
Eleanor Parsons
Bourree and Musette Bach
Nancy Stephenson
Sonatina in F Beethoven
Eileen Russell
Prelude in F Beethoven
Barbara Burnett
Bourree from "Water Music"... Handel
De Loss Matheson
Minuet from Symphony in G Minor Mozart
Georgina Matheson
Sonata in G, Allegro Mozart
Rhoda Brown
Fur Elise Beethoven
Marion Stephenson
Gavotte from D Major Suite Bach
Edith Pearson
Rondo in D Mozart
Edna Welton
Gavotte in F Martini
Catherine Pyke
Sonata in C, Allegro Mozart
Eleanor Galbraith
Fantasie D Minor Mozart
Mabel Soderman
Sonata Op. 2 No. 1, Allegro....Beethoven
Mina Fitch

The following diplomas were presented, and prizes and music books from the Academy of Music, Toronto, were presented to Nona Quigg and Dora Soderman for taking highest standing in the Dominion in their grades.

Elementary: First class honors—Dorothy Welton. Honors—Dorothy Goodacre, Josephine Newsome.

MRS. PELLETIER IS ACCIDENTALLY KILLED

Ottawa, November 17.—Mrs. Victor Pelletier, wife of Major Victor Pelletier, was shot and killed at her home yesterday afternoon by the accidental discharge of a revolver in the hands of her husband.

Major Pelletier, who is widely known throughout Canada, was formerly aide-de-camp to four lieut.-governors, Sir P. Pelletier, Sir Francois Langelier, Sir Evaristice Leblanc, and for a time to Sir Charles Fitzpatrick, the present governor. He resigned from the service of Sir Chas. Fitzpatrick about three years ago to accept the position of superintendent of the parliament buildings.

An inquest will be held.

HER TICKET

(By James H. Lewis.)

"Dad, will you give me two dollars?" rang a hopeful voice up the stairway.

"What for, John?"

"I'm going to take Hazel to the senior banquet, dad, and I need the money."

John Harrison, Jr., son of the high-school principal and president of his class, stood at the bottom of the stairs. Money meant little to him. His father had a small salary—how little John did not know or care. All he knew was that the supply had never failed him. He stood rubbing the banisters with his gloved hand. "Can I have it, father?" he called again.

"Don't know, John. We'll talk about it to-night."

"But, I've got to have it now. They're going to sell tickets this noon, and the first buyers get the best tables."

"Why can't you take another table, John?"

"Why, dad!" exclaimed John. I'm class president! I've got to sit at the best table! The committee won't guarantee my seat if I buy late, but I have the right to buy the first tickets."

"Then you'd better come upstairs for a while, John," said his father slowly. "I want to say something to you."

John pulled off his cap, sent it sailing to the window seat, and dashed up the twenty-two carpeted steps. His father was looking out of the library window. Without turning, he spoke as John entered.

"Well, my boy, what about it?"

"What's the matter, dad? Why all the trouble? Aren't you going to let me have the money?"

"I don't know. How badly do you want it?"

"Why, dad, I've asked Hazel to go with me, and even if I hadn't I'm president and must go!"

"H'm, John, how much do you think of Hazel?"

John squirmed in his chair. "Why?" he asked.

"I just wondered."

"Well, I suppose I like her."

"When did you start going with her?"

"Oh, I don't know; a while ago."

"If you had money of your own, John, would you take her to the banquet?"

"You bet I would!"

"Then why not earn it?"

"Oh—"

John whistled, balanced the chair on its rear legs, shoved his hands into his pockets and pulled out a knife. He was not planning to cut anyone, but he wanted to think, and he could think better when his hands were occupied with something. To earn the money had not occurred to him.

"I was just thinking," said his father, "that, if I paid for Hazel's ticket, she ought to go with me. It's usually the custom, you know, for a lady to go with the man who pays for her ticket."

"But, father!"

"And since you're counting on entertaining the girl yourself instead of letting me do it, I wondered whether you ought not to pay the bill rather than I. I want you to fix this in mind, my boy; I'm ready to pay for your school, for your home and for your clothes; but when it comes to girls, they're yours, John, not mine. They go with you, not with me. They are interested in you, not in me. And someone you've got to pay for them. We had better begin now rather than later."

John listened soberly. His father did not often talk in that way, but when he did John knew that he meant what he said. His father seemed to step into his life just at little turning points. He did not forever keep nagging at him, nor did he interfere much with John's plans unless he came to him for advice. But once in a while he would talk to him just as he was talking now.

Their last talk of the kind had occurred nearly a year before. Then they had discussed the relative value of grades and basket ball. John had recited often since that time. He did not play the game any less; indeed he was the star forward on the team; but when he was not actually on the floor of the gymnasium he thought less about the game than he had before.

Now as his father quietly talked John knew that he was again speaking sense. He hung his head in thought, then straightened up.

"All right, father. I'll make you a proposition. If you'll lend me the two dollars, I'll either pay you back before the banquet or not go."

His father turned, looked him squarely in the eyes, and said, "It's a bargain, my boy. I think I'll ask you to sign a note, so I can have something to show for it."

The idea of signing a note did not much attract John, but he knew that business men signed them and that this was a business transaction. So he agreed.

John Harrison, Sr., drew up the contract; John Harrison, Jr., signed it; and the two dollars changed hands. John, Sr., again turned to gaze silently out of the window. John, Jr., rose quietly, started, stopped, turned, and then left the room. He was going either to pay the two dollars back or "bust." At noon he bought his two tickets for the first table; but he remembered that they belonged to his father.

When John was on his way home that afternoon Perc Brown whistled to him. He waited for Perc to catch up. Perc was popular enough in school, but he did not play much on the athletic teams. His one stunt was the half-mile race in track meets. He "came out" in the spring, but not in the fall or much during the winter. His father owned a small and not very profitable grocery store, and Perc helped pay his own expenses by carrying newspapers. He received only three dollars a week for the work, and the route was eight miles long. However, the distance did not so much matter, for he had the use of a horse, a skittish, rangy beast in fresh from the plains. Just before sending it in to the city for sale some one had made a pretense of breaking it, and it had stopped bucking—but how that horse could run! It knew its master and served him well, but once it had kicked another boy out of its stall.

"Say, Jack, want a job?" asked Perc as he fell into step.

"What doing?"

"Carrying my papers."

"I don't know. What's the matter?"

"Indoor track begins to-morrow, and I'd like to take a crack at it. Your basket ball season's done now, and you've nothing at all to do."

"What made you pick on me?" asked John cautiously.

"Well, if I am to get in some training, some one will have to carry my papers. It's no snap of a job, and I'd rather trust you to do it than any body else."

"How long do you want me to do it?"

"Week or so."

"How much will you give me?"

"Two and a quarter, and the use of the horse."

"Umph, easy money—for you, Perc. But does anyone else ever ride your horse?"

"No, though I think you could. I'll help you start. He probably won't buck. He may run away, but that's all."

John's heart took an extra beat. "All?" he asked scornfully. "You said a mouthful then, Perc. Say, if I ride that beast, and he runs away, and I break my neck—well, that is all!"

John had seen the horse run once and was glad he was seeing it from the sidewalk; yet he needed the two dollars and needed them badly. Of course, if the horse should run away, he would be at the hospital instead of the banquet; but if it should not run, he would have earned his borrowed dollars.

"Think I can ride your horse, Perc?" he asked.

"Sure, if you're willing to take the chance. If you'll risk yourself, I'll risk the horse."

"Done," said John. "When do I begin?"

"To-morrow."

As a matter of fact John began his job that afternoon. Perc superintended the start. He told him again at what houses to leave the newspapers and saw him start. It was a glorious day in early spring, and, though the horse shied a little, it behaved pretty well on the whole. John was a little nervous when he went home after his first ride, but he was happy.

For four days he went someywhat apprehensively to the barn every afternoon, saddled the horse, backed it out, and climbed on his back. Every time he did so he wondered how long it would be before the horse would take a notion to "shake" him. But each day he grew more hopeful that the end of the week would come before he should have trouble with the horse.

The last day dawned dark and chilly. By noon a heavy sleet was driving in from the north. Trees, bushes, sidewalks and roads were all covered with an icy sleet. Automobiles, guarding their rubber tires with chains, crept slowly along. The delivery wagons crawled carefully up and down the streets. Small boys swarmed everywhere with their sleds and made the walks dangerous.

John started resolutely for Perc's barn. What an afternoon! He took what comfort he could in remembering that it was his last trip with the newspapers, and that the banquet was that night. He trotted and slid along the walks to the barn. A dozen times, as he caught at a tree or a pole or a fence to stop his slipping, he hesitated and debated whether to turn back. Why go on? It was not his paper route. Suppose people should miss their papers for one night; they would not blame him much. Many would think that the wind had blown them away. Then he wondered what Hazel and his father would say if they should find out he had dodged his work. He had agreed to earn the money. He had already got the money and therefore must do what he had promised. He could not back out at the last minute, even if no one would know the difference. Undecided, he steadied himself against a telephone pole and kicked its sleety surface. Hazel would probably not know, he reflected; and yet, he would have to look straight at her when he told her that he himself had earned the tickets for the banquet.

That settled it. He went straight to the barn, spoke quietly to the horse, fastened the cinches of the saddle and put on the bridle.

"It's a big risk with this horse," he said to himself, but nevertheless he led the animal out of the doorway.

As the horse felt the crunching of the ice under its feet, it jumped suddenly. "Whoa, Dragon! Whoa, boy!" John cried. "Whoa! Whoa! Stand still!"

But the ice snapped under Dragon's hoofs like a nest of machine guns. He pulled and jerked, jumped from side to side, and at every lunge became more excited. "Whoa, Dragon!" John cried again and again.

Suddenly he seized the saddle horn and swung himself to the horse's back. For a fraction of a second the horse stood quivering with fear; then, gathering his whole mighty strength together, he took the bit between his teeth and plunged down the alley. He was wild again, and mad with fear.

Dragon swung into the street, slipped to his knees and round on his haunches, got his feet under him again with a lunge and once more sprang forward. "Whoa, boy, whoa!" shouted John, but he was no longer dealing with a tame animal. Dragon changed into a jumpy gallop. He shied at a glassy tree; then an automobile horn sounded behind him, and he forgot all the laws of horse sense and horse training. He bolted.

"Runaway! Runaway!" screamed a boy from a doorway.

Ka-luck! Ka-luck! Ka-luck! the horse's hoofs clattered on the frozen sleet.

John hugged the saddle horn. Flop! Flop! the saddle sprang up to hit him. It seemed to him that he lighted in the seat only once in a dozen jumps. "Ungh! Ungh!" he groaned as his breath was jolted out. But he gritted his teeth. He would show them—Hazel, his father, Perc Brown, Perc's horse—everyone! He would hang on that horse until daylight if necessary.

The avenue went down a slope and then up a steep hill. Like an avalanche the horse hurtled down the slope. A slip, a slide to the gutter, and horse and rider would be flung in a broken heap at the side of the road.

The slope seemed endless. The glassy trees flew past like poles beside an express train. A giant bob sled covered with boys thundered down the sidewalk to the right, then another and another. It seemed as if the world had been covered with a glacier, and all the inhabitants were sliding. A wheezing automobile started carefully out from a side street, but at sight of the bolting horse, waited to let it pass. John was bending low over the horn of the saddle. Man and beast flashed by, a flying horse with some one on its back. Farther and farther down the hill they tore. Nearer and nearer came the bottom and a chance for safety. "Whoa, Dragon! Whoa, Dragon! Whoa! Whoa! Whoa!" John gasped with every beat of the hoofs.

Suddenly the slope ceased. The horse, now running on level ground, lifted its head a trifle. Then the steep hill began.

"Whoa, boy! Whoa!" John cried. "Whoa! Whoa!"

The puffing beast shortened its jumps, trotted, walked, stopped. It was exhausted. It now realized that the burden on its back still remained and that it was speaking in strangely familiar tones. The ice indeed still cracked under its feet, but there seemed to be no danger. It took a step forward, and the ice cracked again but did no harm. The horse took a few more steps; then it stopped.

"Now, Dragon," said John, "you're going back home, and you're going to carry those papers. Turn round!" And he pulled the rein.

That night, when John and Hazel reached the banquet hall, the feet of the class had reached the second course. As the class president came in with his partner they nodded their heads wisely and made funny remarks. But neither John nor Hazel cared, for both were very proud. John had really earned the right to take Hazel to the banquet, and Hazel regarded him as a true knight.

IDLE THOUGHTS OF A BUSY FARMER

Now that women have the vote, practice as doctors, bone-shakers and lawyers, as well as on the jury and bench, the next move will be to appropriate the moose season. At present half the male population of these parts have departed for the high timber in the hope of securing a moose.

The Progressives, according to Woods and the other U.F.A. political government in Canada along the lines organizers, would like to establish a of the Farmers' party in North Dakota. How has North Dakota fared under this farmer government? It established banks, elevators, flour mills, home building association, etc. With what result? According to Dakota papers taxes have been tripled in North Dakota by farmer laws.

Marketing conditions, which were to be improved, are worse than they ever were. The Bank of North Dakota is insolvent. The programme of state marketing has been scrapped for a co-operative marketing plan. The state home builders' department has quit. The state insurance department is more than a year behind in its payments, and some of the 1920 claims won't be paid for two years. Virtually every enterprise sponsored by them is bankrupt. The Consumers' United Stores Co. alone cost the farmers over $1,000,000. The state flour mill lost more in the first year it was run than it cost to buy the property. Would Crerar have improved things in Dakota had he been running the Farmers' party then? He thinks he can, if he runs it in Canada; but I, for one, hope he won't get the chance.

The U.G.G. management must now regret having raised Crerar's salary by $10,000 per annum on condition he left the Union government. His political ambition, the grain commission injunction and elevator double bottoms are bringing that company and its workings considerably before the public. Work can sometimes be accomplished more securely for the worker without a limelight.

Mr. Greenfield, the wouldbe premier of Alberta, and Mr. Brownlee, the ditto attorney-general of the same, propose to audit the books of the late government and re-arrange the working of liquor distribution. Before strating all this, wouldn't it be in better form for them to get elected to the Alberta legislature as a preliminary to assuming power over the electorate.

CLAIM NORTH DAKOTA ELECTION WAS ILLEGAL

Fargo, N.D., November 15.—An injunction restraining the state canvassing board from certifying the election of independent candidates in the recent recall election will be sought in the state supreme court within a few days. It is understood the injunction grounds cited by the non-partisan leaguers are that the recall petitions did not contain the names of the required number of legal electors, and that therefore election was illegal.

All national railway contracts for equipment and other supplies will stand the light of day, declared D. B. Hanna, president of the Canadian National railways, on Wednesday, in connection with the statements made recently by James Murdock, former member of the board of commerce. Murdock claimed that millions of ties were left to rot.

Is It Worth 50 Cents?

"Money can't buy anything else like this wonderful herbal Zam-Buk. It's simply priceless!" says one enthusiastic mother.

For injuries, Zam-Buk is the indispensable ever-ready healer. Where there is any skin or scalp disease, Zam-Buk is magical in extracting germs and poisonous impurities and growing new healthy skin. Being prepared exclusively from pure refined herbal essences, all highly concentrated, Zam-Buk retains its medicinal virtues indefinitely. It never goes rancid and useless like fatty salves and ointments do. Yet, whilst so much more safe, purer and reliable, herbal Zam-Buk costs no more to buy.

From Stadacona St., Montreal, Mrs. Villiers, writes:—"For healing, give me Zam-Buk! It is the finest thing I know. It saved me from a poisoned hand, rid my three children of scalp sores, and healed my husband's badly crushed finger. We wouldn't be without it at any price."

BUNK!

To the Editor of The News.

A few of the electors had the opportunity of giving W. W. B. McInnes the "once over" on Saturday afternoon. Taking in mind the distance that he has come to contest this riding, and hearing the line of bunk that he turned loose on Saturday, one is forcibly reminded of the legend of a certain famous monkey—"Far-fetched and full of nonsense."

Little wonder that he lost his deposit in both Centre Vancouver and Comox-Alberni in 1917 if his argument then was similar to what we listened to on Saturday. But even an adverse majority of some 9000 in the Vancouver riding, does not seem to have cooled his ambition to gain a seat at any cost.

Imagine a man talking about the possibility of an "expert government" compiling the figures on a census of the Dominion in one week. Doesn't he realize that the value of a census lies in its reliability? Or did he just think that we are easy and will fall for any kind of bunk?

Then to talk about our tariff being "bad, immoral and unscientific," when Canada had grown up on it, and no nation in the world is in better economic condition today. If the deed reciprocity scheme could be resurrected because it would be an "advantageous thing for the United States," is that any reason why we should dig the skeleton out of its peaceful tomb?

Recall the days when Sir Wilfrid Laurier saddled the third Transcontinental line on to Canada, listen to Mr. McInnes laud Sir Wilfrid's memory to the skies, and then hear the candidate assert his willingness to hand the lines over to anybody that would take them, anyhow. A nice tribute to pay to a dead leader, repudiating his policy of public ownership, willing to keep the debts but give away the assets. Another McInnesism which reminds us that Sir Wilfrid tolerated that bad, immoral, unscientific tariff for years.

A high pinnacle of bunk was reached when he tried to make his audience believe that the banks get the rake-off on the difference in exchange rates. It is to be hoped that the incoming government will make it necessary for candidates to pass an elementary examination in economics, or at least to ask one or two simple questions from someone who has practical knowledge before peddling that class of rot. Why is it feasible to have National Banks when it is wrong to have National Railways? Consistency, thou art a jewel!

I do not wish to impose on your space to greater length, Mr. Editor, by multiplying cases indefinitely. Just one more:

Mr. McInnes threw out a vote-catcher for the women by proposing more equitable inheritance laws. The British North America Act says that inheritance laws are under provincial control. But, of course, a mere incident like that couldn't be allowed to deprive Mr. McInnes of the pleasure of handing out the bunk.

Thank goodness, the election will soon be over, and Mr. McInnes will probably relieve us of the necessity of submitting to further outbursts of such twaddle. We don't blame the local Liberals; they are innocent victims like the rest of us. Thank you.

SUCCESSFUL COLLECTION OF GOODS FOR THE DROUGHT-SUFFERERS

The collection of clothing, bedding, etc., by the Masonic brethren from the people of Red Deer for the relief of the drought sufferers in the south took place on Wednesday afternoon and there was such a generous response from the townspeople that half a carload of goods was collected. The Masons organized an auto collection service, and procured packing cases and packed the goods at the police court room, the city officers giving valued help. They were forwarded Friday to Red Cross headquarters, Calgary. The Masons are very grateful to the citizens for their loyal support in this enterprise, and the citizens, on their part, are not unmindful of the kindness and work of the Masonic brethren whose arrangements and energy made such a gratifying contribution possible.

MR. DAY'S SMOKER

Fighting Speeches by Mr. McClure, Mr. Snell, Mr. Payne, Mr. Dale

Quite a gratifying number of citizens turned out on Wednesday evening to attend the first smoker in Mr. J. F. Day's campaign—in fact there were not enough chairs at first to go round and more had to be brought in.

Mr. W. E. Payne was in the chair, and ably handled the earlier part of the programme consisting of city organization and speeches. The office of President of the local organization received two nominations, and instead of risking the trouble of a contested election the nominees adopted the fine old scriptural method of drawing lots. Mr. McClure elected to "come to" Jack Fulton, won the toss and named Jack President. He himself was promptly elected Vice-President. The Hon. Arthur Meighen was made Honorary President, and Mr. J. F. Day, Hon. Vice-President.

Mr. J. R. McClure, called upon for a speech, said making a campaign speech there was something like talking to himself, or carrying coal to Newcastle. He went on to criticize the Hon. Mackenzie King for his lack of a wheat board programme, and Hon. T. A. Crerar for his alleged vacillating attitude to it, saying it would be no good for the present crop, although he had been one of the howlers for a wheat board. He was now saying the Grain Enquiry Act was ultra vires, and the whole inquiry was characterized as a plot against himself, politically.

Continuing, the speaker referred to the matter of false bottoms and overages, calling the alleged false-bottoms "progressive instruments." He contended that the tariff was the supreme issue in this election, made so by conditions, not by Mr. Meighen's pronouncement. Every important country now had a protective tariff, except Great Britain which was adopting it as fast as she could.

Mr. W. E. Payne opened with a reference to the usual easiness of money under high tariff conditions. We needed a homogeneous country, not a protectionist manufacturing east and a free trade farming west. Money came mainly from manufactures, and they should be encouraged. Western Canada was an expensive country to live in, and we needed to have a prevalence of high wages to meet high living prices.

He did not think it was necessary or advisable for us to be bolstering up the commerce of China and Japan. Alberta was bound to be a great manufacturing country eventually. We had by far the biggest supply of coal of any province in Canada, and coal was the basis of all big manufacture. The speaker accused Mackenzie King of suppressing for ten years the G. T. P. agreement to take back their conductors after a strike even while he assured these men he would do everything in his power for them. Mr. Payne closed a fine fighting speech with a long arraignment of the U. G. G. and their business methods, giving an analysis of the figures of the various grades of grain bought and sold, the argument being that the farmers had not received any better treatment from their own co-operative concern than from the wicked middlemen the Company had been organized to fight. He hoped this country would not descend to the indignity of an intensive class-war, for class-wars always ended in bloodshed.

Mr. H. J. Snell was delighted to see such a gathering of Red Deer's independent thinkers. He thought Mr. Day was as good a farmer supporter as the farmers could find in this district. He was a man of long, broad and varied experience. He had commended himself to the electorate by his fine magnanimity in 1917, when he had given way to Dr. Clark. Personally, he did not believe in buying a pig in a sack. He thought this craze for group government was only temporary. Party government might be scotched, but it was not killed. He thought election day was going to give a big surprise to many people. The farmers were wide awake and would not stand for being trifled with by this U.G.G. forever. Mr. Day was broad-minded enough to appreciate the point of view of the easterner as well as that of the western farmers.

Mr. J. J. Dale gave from personal experience a little of the inside history of the starting of the U.G.G., having been present at some of the early meetings in 1907. He thought they had started with worthy and laudable objects, but had not kept to them closely enough.

Mr. H. F. Kenny took charge of the musical part of the programme, most of which he very ably contributed himself. Mr. Chester Fulton contributed a step-dance, Mr. Fowler a solo, and a few rousing choruses brought an enthusiastic meeting to a fine close. Mr. Kenny was particularly happy in his rendering of "Johnny Schmoker." Mr. Welton officiated at the piano, and Mr. Vic Day was cigar-passer-in-chief.
